

The First CSU
Community-Based Teaching
and Research Conference:

11:30 am	Conference Registration (Lower Lobby Lounge)
12:30 pm - 1:30 pm	Lunch (Dining Room)
1:30 pm - 5:00 pm	Pre-conference Workshops

WORKSHOP I:
Publish What You Do: Practical Strategies for Combining Service Learning and Research
HILLSIDE CENTRAL 1/2/3

Debra David, Director of the Center for Service Learning and Professor of Health Sciences, San José State University

Maureen Rubin, Director of the Center for Community Service Learning and Professor of Journalism, CSU Northridge

The explosion of interest nationally in service learning and its impact on students and communities provides an important research opportunity for faculty who utilize service learning in their courses. This highly interactive workshop will teach participants how to design a course syllabus that complements either a pedagogical or discipline-based research agenda.

WORKSHOP II:
Community-Based Participatory Research: Combining Classroom Learning with Social Action
HILLSIDE WEST 1/2/3

Jose Zapata Calderon, Michi and Walter Weglyn Endowed Chair in Multicultural Studies, California State Polytechnic University, Pomona

This workshop will focus on the definitions, methods, and stages of community-based participatory research and how it can be used alongside community partners in conducting action-research projects. The workshop will include a presentation on the various methodologies that can be used in gathering data, the science/art of interpreting data, and various ways to present the results.

WORKSHOP III:
Grant Funding and Logic Models: Common Ground
HILLSIDE EAST 1/2

Jeanie Kim-Han, Director of the Center for Internships and Service Learning, CSU Fullerton

Projects and programs involving community partners can be supported by funding from a variety of sources including private foundations, corporate grants, and state and federal programs. This workshop will explore the range of opportunities for grants to support community work and will focus on logic models as an approach to program design and accountability.

WORKSHOP IV:
Practical Approaches to Qualitative (and Integrated) Research Methodology, Design, and Data Analysis
AUDITORIUM

Eli Lieber, Co-Director of the Fieldwork and Qualitative Data Research

This workshop is designed for faculty who desire to become engaged with the community in a way that unifies their teaching, research, and public service. Panelists will map out a natural pathway of community engagement, CSU Long Beach

WORKSHOP V:
Converging Operations: Combining Service Learning, Community-Based Research, and Public Service for a Cohesive RTP Portfolio
GARDEN VISTA

Cory W. Johnson, Assistant Professor of Recreation and Leisure Studies and Faculty Fellow of the Center for Community Engagement, CSU Long Beach

Malcolm Finney, Associate Professor of Linguistics and Faculty Fellow of the Center for Community Engagement, CSU Long Beach

Beth Manke, Associate Professor of Human Development and Faculty Fellow of the Center for Community Engagement, CSU Long Beach

Pat Rozee, Director of the Center for Community Engagement and Professor of Psychology and Women's Studies, CSU Long Beach

Carina Sass, Associate Director of Community Partnerships and Civic Engagement, Center for Community Engagement, CSU Long Beach

This workshop is designed for faculty who desire to become engaged with the community in a way that unifies their teaching, research, and public service. Panelists will map out a natural pathway of community engagement, CSU Long Beach
